Printing e-mails, formatted automatically. If you send many messages a day, you probably need to wrap a text that extends over several lines. This can be quite tricky, and you will often need to do it several times. In many cases, it is also a waste of time to edit the messages manually. MailWrap does the task without you having to do a single thing. Just copy the text you wish to wrap, and click on the MailWrap application window. The application wraps the text and saves the result to the clipboard. All of this is done in a single mouse click. After pressing the Paste button, you can save the message to your e-mail client, print it or send it by default. The text is not stored anywhere on the user's hard drive, and the application is fully portable, so you can even use it as a backup tool. MailWrap benefits include: Support for wrapping lines in e-mails without changing the text formatting Unlimited text sources MailWrap is a very simple application to use. You can simply select the text you wish to wrap, click on the application window's Paste button, and move on. You do not need to copy, save or format anything. The tool will automatically wrap the text and paste it to the clipboard. When you have copied the text, click on the application window's Paste button to send the message. If there are characters at the beginning of a line such as spaces or tabs, they will be placed in the same position in the rewrapped text. This makes the quotation box look like a normal text box. Wrap lines in an e-mail in no time MailWrap can wrap lines in multiple lines without causing formatting problems. This is particularly important for long e-mails, as well as quotes and numerous other formatting details. When the line you wish to wrap is at the beginning of the text, simply copy it, and go to the MailWrap application window. Then, click on the Paste button. You can then save the message to your e-mail client, print it or send it by default. Comes with many benefits If you are looking for a good way to wrap long text without messing up the message's original formatting, you should definitely look into using MailWrap. Callback is a function passed as an argument to another function, right? I am not really sure what a callback is. I thought a callback is something that a function passes as a response to another function. Like here, the author is using the callback provided by the xhr object xhr.open("GET", "answer.html", true); xhr.onreadystatechange = function() { if(xhr.readyState == 4) { document.getElementById("result").innerHTML = xhr.responseText; } } xhr.send(); what is the xhr.readyState change thing there? is that his callback? A: Simple JavaScript functions are
