Here's the Fiddle It works in Chrome & Safari but not in FF. It doesn't seem to be the overflow-y, as you can see that I'm trying to use overflow: hidden; on the body. If anyone could point out what I'm doing wrong and how I can fix it, I'd appreciate it. A: The problem is that Firefox does not honor any "default behavior" for the overflow property. If you create a new style for .search input then Firefox will honor it. Then you can remove overflow from body and set the style for .search input. In your code, .search input { color: #444; height: 23px; border: none; outline: none; background: #fff; width: 100%; border-radius: 3px 3px 0 0; padding: 8px 6px 3px 6px; font-family: Tahoma, Geneva, sans-serif; font-size: 12px; position: relative; left: 0; top: 4px; } .search input::-webkit-input-

What's new in Fifa 22:

- FIFA 22 introduces "HyperMotion Technology," which uses motion capture data collected from 22 real-life players playing a complete, high-intensity football match in motion capture suits.
