See Either you create a simple object $mailer = new Mailer(); or you use the $mailer = new Mailer(/parameters/) which will create a new object with any needed methods and properties. See for more info. Q: How to find specific group defined in.spec file in make? I'm trying to create spec file for libraries that have multiple definitions of the same groups (e.g. a main and a test library). Here is an example spec file: defines = {'LIBS' => ['lib1.so', 'lib2.so'], 'LDFLAGS' => ['-Llib1', '-Llib2']} specs = spec.compile(Dir.glob('lib*.so'), defines.merge, :libdirs => [lib1, lib2]) So, the problem is that this is going to produce different libname in executable in the results. Is there any way to configure make to find file lib*.so,
