Ofcom's Strategy and Delivery Group and The Office of the Prime Minister are considering whether to regulate 3G. Ofcom is also considering whether to change the rules on cordless telephones to improve safety, protect consumers and encourage innovation in the provision of cordless services and products. Other issues that Ofcom is considering include: whether to remove the requirement for membership of a 'trade union' as a condition of a broadcasting licence; and whether and how to change the requirements for carriage of other multi-services of which the BBC is part, such as switching of digital terrestrial television and mobile TV.
