Main menu Post navigation "Protect your land" In the name of protecting the environment, wealthy landowners in several states have successfully blocked attempts by local governments to create more open spaces. The cases raise a disturbing question: Is the true goal of protecting nature preserving private property? In Pennsylvania last year, conservation groups sued the state for allowing development on land owned by, among others, Chester County's Edgar S. Grosvenor Jr. and the son-in-law of the late billionaire John M. Archbold. The plaintiffs argued that the Grosvenors and their neighbors blocked a

If you are a candidate for the CityUniversity of New York Undergraduate Student Association (CUNYUSA) Electoral College, you are a person that is pursuing the degree of Bachelor of Science in Political Science, currently a sophomore in CUNY's Hunter College program. We want to ask you a few questions about your political preferences. You must answer each question accurately: (For some people, this test may not be difficult. Others may be struggling with one or more of the questions. Try to keep in mind that this quiz is to help us determine the best candidate for the position of President, not to vote you out. If you struggle with any of the questions, please take time to think and reassess. We also recommend checking out our previous questions to refresh your memory.)The process of choosing a workmate and developing a team is known as team building. A good team building exercise helps to drive performance and team unity. Team Building for the Workplace Team building is really designed for a group of people who work together. Team building is a type of leadership training. The aim is to develop a successful leadership and management team. Team building can be done on-site or off-site. It is a great way to develop employee morale, motivation and team unity. Team Building Activities for Hiring Employees Provide the people who work for you a varied team building activity to help them bond with each other. Some ideas could include: Pairing off with new employees. Take them for a lunch. Ask people to work in groups and share opinions about each other Discuss team goals, problems and how to solve them Share personal experiences and how they have coped with difficult situations Challenge people to a team sport
