This paper describes the four essential elements of community development as identified by the International Association of Community Development Professionals. The essentials are cultural and political sensitivity, the education of professionals, democratic participation, and the use of information technologies. Each element is discussed and the need to balance them is emphasized. Finally, the concept of the "ecosystem" is introduced to address the need for a new, more comprehensive approach to community development. The discussion develops an ecological model of social change in which development is neither chaotic nor linear but occurs in an interactive, multidirectional way in which all parts are essential.Played it when I was in highschool. I thought it was ok and was good at a time where I was still playing console games quite a bit. It was also made by the guy who made DKN Doki, which I thought was pretty rad. Maybe I'll give
