This time the Weather Channel left out the fact that most of our country does NOT have a declared Emergency. Except for Louisiana and Florida. For the rest of us, it's business as usual. So here are the incidents from last night. My info comes directly from where I lived, where all the activity was. Clewiston Florida: 6:45 pm The town of Clewiston, Orlando area, started getting rained down on from about 1:30pm on. Not so much by the 3pm high tide, but rather right after. The whole town of Clewiston had a record 4.06 inches of rain in a hour and a half. Due to this, all of our neighborhoods also got drenched. You could see the water clearly in the street and get soaked in a matter of minutes. The creeks and canals were running full force throughout the town. This is c6a93da74d
